Senior Class History

When we, the Seniors of nineteen hundred fifty, entered high school, all the dreams of preceding years lay ahead of us. We knew we had a part to play on this great stage of life for the four ensuing years. Hence, inclined to use the past as a guide to the future, we began our high school career as understudies to those who had succeeded in portraying leading roles.

As the curtain rises, let us review several scenes from those memorable years which are now the past.

In the year nineteen hundred forty-six, eighty jolly lads and lassies entered Granite Quarry High School as Freshmen. School was extremely different from that of the preceding years, but under the guidance of Mr. J. O. Rodgers and Mr. W. L. Rhyne we quickly became adapted to our new environment. Although we played only a small part in the school activities, we undertook each task with enthusiasm. Four of our class members, Jennie Safrit, Bill Julian, Annita Elium, and Howard Crossett, were selected to serve on the Student Council, and a group of girls participated in the May Day dances. We selected the following as class officers: President, Bill Julian; Vice-President, Ray Cauble; Secretary-Treasurer, Mary Ellen Jarrett.

The following year we returned to assume the responsibilities of Sophomores. We were now only sixty-four in number, but under the guidance of Mrs. J. R. Felts, Jr., and Mr. W. L. Rhyne we succeeded in each task we undertook. Again, this year, four members of our class were on the Student Council. They were Nancy Cain, Joyce Thomas, Billy Witty, and James Julian. Several of our most athletic classmates began training for the basketball and baseball squads, and two of the boys received letters in baseball. Eunice Silliman won first place in the County in the Kiwanis Oratorical Contest. Our class officers this year were: President, Howard Crossett; Vice-President, James Troutman; Secretary, Roana Agner; and Treasurer, Ray Cauble.

There were fifty-six who began the year as jolly Juniors. We were greatly interested in a variety of extracurricular activities. Four boys and six girls received their basketball letters and one boy received his letter for baseball. Others revealed talent in the various literary publications, and the local speech contest on World Peace was won by Jean Trexler. For the first time our school had representatives sent to Girls' State. Those chosen to go were Rebecca Peeler and Mary Ellen Jarrett. There were two boys sent to Boys' State also. They were Howard Crossett and Joe Kesler. This was a most important period in our high school career, for we selected our class rings, our invitations, and our calling cards. As Juniors, we presented our first stage production, "The Gang's All Here", under the direction of Mrs. Bryte K. Crowell. The play was a great success, and with the proceeds we received from it we entertained the Seniors at a formal banquet. The theme of the banquet was "Maytime Plantation." The officers for the year were: President, Marian Misenheimer; Vice-President, Annita Elium; Secretary, Polly Fisher; and Treasurer, Helen Brown.

Then, all too soon, we entered our final year of high school. Our dreams of preceding years were now realized, for we were Seniors at last. Only fifty had found it possible to continue their high school career thus far. The following served faithfully as class officers: President, Paul Webb; Vice-President, Ray Cauble; Secretary, Sybil Barnhardt; and Treasurer, James Julian. We now had the star roles in the various school activities. Two of the Student Council officers, and four other members, were chosen from the Senior class. These were: Howard Crossett, President; Frances Beck, Secretary; Nathlyn Fesperman, Jean Trexler, Bill Julian, and Donald Bruce. Mrs. J. L. Sowers and Mrs. Eugene McCombs directed us in our various activities. Under their guidance we selected our Senior Superlatives and our Mascots. We also planned to present one last play before stepping out on the stage of life. Eagerly we awaited our class day exercises and that final day of graduation.

Now, as the curtain slowly falls on those happy scenes of our high school career, we would like to express our grateful thanks to all of our faculty advisors, and to Mr. E. C. Staton, who has directed us during these most cherished years of our lives. We know not what the future holds in store for us; we can but wonder what scenes will be revealed when next the curtain rises.

Senior Class Prophecy

The Seniors are giving one of their greatest stage productions—their future. The characters are the graduates of Granite Quarry High School, attaining their goal in life. The time is nineteen hundred and sixty-five. The settings differ as the future of the individual differs.

The audience settle in their seats and the curtain rises on the first scene.

The scene is a large hospital. We recognize immediately two of the girls in white, Jean Peeler and Jean Trexler. They are carefully attending their patient, Gregory Harrison, who was injured on his job of traveling salesman. Beautiful flowers are in evidence about the room. These flowers were sent by Frances Beck, owner of Granite Quarry Florist, and by Patsy Miller, Mary Lentz, and Hilder Eller, co-owners of the Friendly Flower Shop.

The scene changes suddenly to a busy avenue in Granite Quarry. We see a large sign, "Lou Lou's Lunch", predominating other signs. The owner of this restaurant, Betty Lou Whirlow, informs us that she has employed as dietitian Rebecca Rash. She also tells us that Nancy Cain, now a famous interior decorator, designed the interior of her building. The fountain service is efficiently carried on by two lovely soda jerks, Frances Miller and Sylvia Peacock.

Other members of our class appear on the stage. Gaynelle Fulk, Annita Elium and Betty Holshouser have left their husbands at home while they have an evening of entertainment.

The television set in this fashionable restaurant is now working perfectly, thanks to Howard Crossett, a television technician, and we see the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers competing for the pennant. How can the Yankees lose with Herman Ritchie as third baseman and James Troutman as pitcher? Narrating the game is Ray Cauble, a well-known sports writer.

Scenes are rapidly being presented on the stage and we see many of our classmates.

Eston Doyle, owner of the Doyle's Rabbit and Flower Farm, is busy counting his rabbits. He has enlisted the aid of Detective Joe Kesler in the fast growing job.

A large business office is another scene. Very busy are Grace Bost, Polly Fisher, and Helen Brown trying to please their executive, Clyde Brown, Jr.

We see Eunice Silliman and Pansy Hopkins as teachers, telling the students about the excellent missionary work that is being done by Mary Lee Earnhardt and Margaret Emma Yost.

Sybil Barnhardt and Margaret Walton are in darkest Africa, uncovering the ruins of a once-existing city. In the jungles not far away are Bill Witty and Donald Bruce capturing wild animals for the zoo.

Sara Jo Lingle is singing an operatic solo, accompanied by Rebecca Peeler at the piano. They are touring with a New York Opera Company.

Verne McCombs is waiting on customers in McCombs Grocery Store. Patiently waiting at home for Verne to bring home the pay check is Mary Ellen Jarrett.

Paul Webb and James Julian have perfected their supersonic jet plane and they are giving a demonstration at La Guardia Field, New York.

Betty Sue Roseman and Lottie Ritchie are telephone operators. They are quite expert at saying "Number please".

Out on the highway someone is getting a ticket for speeding. George Castor is the alert patrolman and we find that Bill Julian is the driver. Bill was hurrying home to see if his beans, wife, and 'taters were okay.

Two of our classmates, Sherry Gantt and Billy Canup, are managers of chain stores. Sherry Gantt is manager of Kress'. Roana Agner is Sherry's secretary and Nathlyn Fesperman is buyer for the store.

In an airplane is Shirley Peeler, airline hostess, comforting the fears of Jean Broadway. Jean is taking a few days off from her job as secretary for her sister in Hollywood to visit the folks back home.

Howard Basinger has just reached the height of his ambition. He has received the title "World's Tallest Man".

In the last scene we see Marian Misenheimer as editor of a new magazine, "Eighteen".

The curtain falls and the audience show their approval by a thundering applause.

Statistics

Not until the day that I was delegated to record the vital statistics of this outstanding Senior Class of '50 did I realize that there could be such a variety of opinion among so-called human beings.

The height attained by the average boy and girl is 5' 5" and the average weight is 132 pounds, with the exception of Bill Julian's 192 pounds. Brown hair and brown eyes appear to be most prevalent in this class of 51 seniors. The average shoe size is 7, although Herman Ritchie claims that his number 11's are quite a firm foundation.

It was approximately 18 years ago that these trouble-makers were slung from the universe and then they began their crusade on this earth.

English and Economics prove to be the favorite subjects of the knowledge seekers, while study hall and physical education drew votes from the less industrious type. Verne still insists that Mary Ellen is his favorite subject. Reigning as king and queen of the faculty are Mr. Rhyne and Mrs. McCombs and the runners-up are Mr. Jones and Mrs. Sowers.

Music seems to have a prominent place in the minds of every senior. For their favorite songs, they picked "I Can Dream, Can't I" and "That Lucky Ole' Sun".

Nosing around a while longer, I discovered that dating is the best-loved pastime of practically every senior. If you happened to be passing by the "Hitching Post" Drive-In Theater, you would most likely find a large number of our class there, engrossed in watching one of their favorite movies, with June Allyson and Gary Cooper performing. James Julian claims his favorite pastime is "just girls", especially Gaynelle.

Quite naturally, basketball was voted the favorite sport by both the participant and the spectator, with baseball taking second-place honors.

If ever, by chance, you are able to find a senior sitting at home, he is sure to be listening to his favorite radio program. Here, the competition is among the "The Beulah Show", "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scout Show", and "Lux Radio Theater", while still others go "all out" for that foremost of all educational programs, "It Pays To Be Ignorant".

The favorite car of these dignified seniors is nothing less than the Pontiac. Quite a few prefer the Chevrolet, but the larger part of us are satisfied with any old jalopy, just so it takes us where we want to go.

Mention "eating" and immediately we ask for fried chicken and ice cream, our favorite foods. Lottie says she'd rather have corn cheese any day.

"Buggy" was acclaimed as the pet saying of the larger part of the class, while "You know it, too" was favored by quite a few, indicating that, even though no one else thinks so, we consider each other as being rather well-informed in more ways than one. We didn't ask the teachers' opinion of this.

Our pet peeve is definitely conceited people. As a hint to the teachers, we don't like homework, either. We do like friendly people and these people must have a sense of humor and know plenty of jokes. If anyone measures up to these requirements, we figure he's a pretty good egg.

By some coincidence, blue and green were voted to be the favorite colors of the seniors, though we wouldn't think of combining them.

Only about 30% of this class intends to continue their education into the higher fields of learning by going on to college. The other 70% think that if they know enough to graduate from high school, they surely must not waste time learning more.

Having completed the above astonishing facts, I, the statistician of the Class of '50, do solemnly affix my signature to this document, hoping that nothing has been left amiss, and that these statistics will always stand as those of one of the greatest classes ever to graduate from Granite Quarry High School.

 - 25. James Julian bequeaths his dependability to Roy Brown.26. Clyde Brown, Jr., leaves at last without his French book.
 - Clyde Brown, Jr., leaves at last without his French book.
 - 27. Nathlyn Fesperman wills her black "crowning glory" to Marie Bringle.
- 28. Jean Peeler bequeaths her love for basketball to Edith Peeler.29. Sherry Gantt wills her "extra pounds" to anyone lucky enough to get a job at Kress' Candy Counter.

Lottie Ritchie leaves.

- 31. Helen Brown wills her pet saying, "nuts", to whoever will promise to "crack" it.
- 32. Betty Sue Roseman bequeaths her quiet dignity to Janet Fisher.

33. Hilda Eller wills her petite, lovable ways to Phyllis Sifford.34. Howard Basinger wills the title of "class baby" to his inevitable successor, the smallest Junior boy.

Herman Ritchie wills his height to Ralph Sifford.

- 36. Mary Lee Earnhardt bequeaths her desire, "to leave no stone unturned", to Cedelia Cauble.
 - Sylvia Peacock bequeaths her musical talent to Betty Sue Kluttz.

38. Shirley Peeler leaves-for Rockwell.

- 39. Margaret Yost wills her blondeness to Kitty Robertson.
- Grace Bost wills some of her friends of the opposite sex to Betty Gheen.
- 41. Gaynelle Fulk bequeaths her tall, slender beauty to Virginia Roscoe.

Joan Earnhardt inherits Rebecca Peeler's industriousness.

Frances Beck wills her love to eat to anyone who isn't calorie shy.

44. George Castor leaves again.

Alvanell Julian inherits Sybil Barnhardt's ability to always know the right answers.

Mary Ellen Jarrett leaves with Verne.

47. Roana Agner wills her winning smile to Doris Earnhardt.

James Troutman leaves on a questionable excuse.

Sara Jo Lingle bequeaths her melodious voice to anyone willing to use it in Chapel.

50. Betty Jo Teague inherits Polly Fisher's qualities of sportsmanship.

And I, being of no capacity to judge the attributes of men, do hereby affix my signature to this the Last Will and Testament of the Senior Class of nineteen hundred and fifty with one last plea, "not guilty".

Class Song

School days bring mem'ries that linger, Some of them never shall die. Those we know best are the dear ones Of days spent at Granite High.

Thoughts of friends we've made these years through, Will come to us when we think of you—
Dear classmates
Dear classmates
Our parting makes us blue.
Ne'er forget how friendships have grown,
Our teachers, parents, friends we have known.
Dear classmates
Dear classmates
We'll cherish thoughts of you.

MARY ELLEN JARRETT

Class Poem

Our hearts rose up with joyful strains When we began our senior year, But when we heard those last refrains Our eyes were filled with tears.

Our thoughts went quickly o'er the years, Recalling those moments of bliss, Remembering our friends so dear Whose companionship we'll miss.

Parents and teachers, we'll ne'er forget,
As our goal we strived to reach,
Your help with the problems we daily met,
Those principles you tried to teach.

We're thinking now, as we depart,
Of the future we shall face,
But you, fond memories of our hearts,
None other can e'er replace.
